THE PREFACE.

THIS Poll had never appear'd in Publick, if the Proceedings in the Scrutiny thereof, had been carried on with any Appearance of Impartiality: My Lord Mayor solemnly declar'd he would ask Counsel upon every particular controverted Circumstance, and very frequently assur'd the Scrutineers (who often press'd His Lordship for his Opinion) that when he had gone through the Whole, and ask'd the Opinion of HIS Counsel, he would declare his Judgment upon the Qualification of every Single Man that had been Objected against by either Side, whether he was a good or a bad Poller: But it is presum'd His Lordship wisely considering, that complying with his Promise would put him under an unavoidable necessity of declaring the Election contrary to his Inclinations, peremptorily refus'd what he had so often promis'd: For, to the Surprize of all the whole Ward, on Wednesday the 24th Instant, to which Time His Lordship had adjourn'd that Wardmoote, with Assurances, That he would then declare on whom the Election was fallen, His Lordship then acquainted the Ward, That having NUMBER'D THE PEOPLE, he Nicely found, That Three of the Eight Candidates had a Superiority of Votes, viz. Sir William Withers, Sir George Newland, and Gerrard Conyers, Esq; That Sir John Scott was the Fourth on whom the Majority fell; and That Three others had an EQUALITY, and One was distanc'd; and That therefore he could not CONVENIENTLY Decide on which Four the Election had fallen, and adjourn'd the Court to Saturday the 27th of October: When His Lordship caus'd Declaration to be made, That the Majority was fallen on Sir George Newland, Gerrard Conyers, Esq; Sir John Houlton, and Sir Samuel Stanier. How much Reason there was for excluding Sir William Withers, Alderman Lewin, and Sir Robert Dunckley, each impartial Citizen, that shall peruse this Poll, will readily determine.
